

President's Message

I hope this newsletter finds each of you doing well. October is here which means the changing of the seasons. It is the vibrant array of colors and crisp football weather that makes October in Indiana so enjoyable for me.

October in Indiana also marks the time for the annual Fall Sports Medicine Symposium. This year, the Symposium will be held on October 26-27th at the Adam's Mark Hotel with the Awards Luncheon and Hall of Fame induction being held at 11 am on Sunday, October 26th. I encourage everyone to mark those dates now on your calendar. I applaud the efforts of Erin Clark, Susan Yeargin, Joe Harvey and the entire education committee, who are putting the finishing touches on a tremendous program.

Dean Behrmann has decided to step down as the high school committee chair after eight years of service. Ryan Fagan has been selected to replace Dean as chair of the High School Committee. Ryan has been a member of the high school committee for three years and will be a strong advocate for high school athletic trainers across the state. I want to personally thank Dean for his service to the IATA. Dean was instrumental in the creation of the high school committee and under his guidance the high school committee has done great things including the recent creation of two $500 scholarships for high school seniors who intend to pursue athletic training as a career.

Robert Kennedy, when speaking about government, said that "our system depends upon the fullest participation of all its citizens". The same can be said about the IATA as well. As I have mentioned in this space before, if Indiana is to progress forward as one of the preeminent state organizations in the nation we need to nurture and mentor new leaders. This will not happen if we as an association are unable to get members interested in the affairs of the profession, especially the student members. With that said, the IATA has three exciting opportunities for our student members including our student representative position, a new IATA student panel and an opportunity to attend the NATA Hit the Hill Day through the iLead program. More information regarding these opportunities will be coming in the near future.
